

Len Hiles: Our 2011 Volunteer of the Year

Once one gets past that handsome face with the big smile and the twinkle in the eyes, one will find out that there is a lot of adventure and experience behind them.

Len Hiles is the Gualala Arts' Volunteer of the Year for a reason. He assisted with the plans for the layout of the new elevator at Gualala Arts along with the electrical engineering of it and the physical labor of putting it in and that was no small feat.

Len and his wife, Sharon, have been coming to the Mendocino coast since the '70s for SCUBA diving, the thing that sparked their interest in the area. One of their friends had bought a lot and ended up buying another lot. So when his friend's original lot went up for sale, Len, working in Albuquerque at the time, bought the land sight unseen.

He and Sharon commuted from Pleasanton and started building their coastal home in 1991 and took 10 years to finish it.

Len is a master in electronics and electrical engineering. Gualala Arts is lucky to have such a talented volunteer. Says Ben Klagenberg, "For an engineer, he's a good
