Ralph Schwartz

Ralph Schwartz, a retired docent at The Dolphin and Gualala Arts has made his final transition. He leaves an adventure story that includes surviving the Great Depression and fighting in World War II. Eventually, he settled on the calm shores of the Pacific in Gualala.

While touring along the coast in 1989, Ralph and his wife Grace met another guest at their Bodega Bay lodging who told them about the South Redwood Coast. They fell in love with the area and shortly thereafter left their hometown of Fort Wayne, Indiana. They bought a house in Sea Ranch, and found jobs at Jay Baker's for Grace, and at the recycling center for Ralph.

Shortly thereafter, the couple started volunteering at the Dolphin, a relationship that lasted for the next sixteen years. Ralph was guest of honor at the Dolphin on October 3, 2006, as a tribute to his faithful Sunday morning stint at the store, often followed in the last few years by a shift at the Gualala Arts Center.

Schwartz loved meeting the public from all over the world – from Tasmania to Iceland. The job suited his extensive experience in retail sales and his personal, understated charm. After the war, he had returned to the furniture business, specializing in baby furniture and clothing. He was instrumental in founding an association of independent nursery furniture retailers with 100 members and a trade magazine.

Ralph also had volunteered as secretary for the Lions Club and Point Arena Mason Blue Lodge, both for nine years. He even helped lay flooring in Coleman Auditorium and helped wire the Arts Center building.

Tribute to The Modern Jazz Quartet Saturday, October 20, 7:30 p.m.

All of its members – John Lewis, piano, Milt Jackson, vibes, Percy Heath, bass and Connie Kay, drums – are now deceased. They ranked, along with the Duke Ellington and Count Basie Orchestras, the Dave Brubeck Quartet, and the Miles Davis, Stan Getz, and Louis Armstrong groups, as one of the most successful jazz ensembles in history for performances and record sales.

This outstanding program is part of the Jazz Series, in association with Fred Adler, of KTDE 100.5 FM local radio, and Gualala Arts. Tickets are now on sale for $30 each. Price goes to $35 on the day of the performance.
