Artists who have held workshops at Gualala Arts, or will be instructors in the coming year, will exhibit some of their best work through Sunday, February 3. A visit to this exhibit will show the quality and variety of art being offered by the present workshop program. As this program expands instructors are coming from across the continent bringing many new ideas and techniques.

These classes are in addition to the rich and varied selection of artists locally who use the facilities of Gualala Arts to hold weekend or extended workshops on weekdays to demonstrate their areas of expertise. These workshops are open to Gualala Arts members and non-members and are increasingly drawing participants in from other parts of California.

This eclectic show has paintings, sculptures, fiber and paper art, quilts, baskets, jewelry, bonsai and much more. Many items are for sale.
