EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

With Art in the Redwoods wrapped up for another year, we turn a corner toward the fall. As we transition, the days are getting shorter and there's a crisp bite to the morning air. Young people are both excited and reluctant to take their seats on the school bus and in a new class. But we still have a few more summer nights . . . this month Gualala Arts brings you a mellow concert under the stars, an amazing exhibit by Master Potter Paul Stein, and a packed schedule of fall workshops . . . and the music never stops . . .

The Music Never Stopped (Grateful Dead)

Songwriters: John Barlow / Robert Hall Weir

The Music Never Stopped lyrics © Universal Music Publishing Group

*There's mosquitoes on the river Fish are rising up like birds
It's been hot for seven weeks now,
Too hot to even speak now, Did you hear what I just heard?*

*Say it might have been a fiddle or it could have been the wind
But there seems to be a beat now I can feel it my feet now
Listen here it comes again!*

*There's a band out on the highway, They're high steppin' into town
It's a rainbow full of sound, It's fireworks, calliopes and clowns
Everybody dancin' C'mon children, C'mon children, Come on clap your hands.*

*Sun went down in honey and the moon came up in wine,
You know stars were spinnin' dizzy, Lord
The band kept us too busy we forgot about the time.*

*They're a band beyond description, Like Jehovah's favorite choir
People joining hand in hand While the music played the band, Lord
They're setting us on fire.*

*Crazy rooster crowin' midnight, Balls of lightin' roll along
Old men sing about their dreams, Women laugh and children scream
And the band keeps playin' on.*

*Keep on dancin' thru the daylight, Greet the mornin' air with song
No ones's noticed, but the band's all pack and gone. Was it ever there at all?
But they keep on dancin' C'mon children, C'mon children, Come on clap your hands
Well the cool breeze came on Tuesday, And the corn's a bumper crop
And the fields are full of dancin' Full of singin' and romancin'
The music never stopped.*

Gualala Arts Executive Director

Chef Sheralyn Kirby oversaw this year's Hats Off Dinner to much applause! (Sheralyn and GA Executive Director David "Sus" Susalla, left).

Thank you to the many volunteers who made Art in the Redwoods such a success!

Thank you to our many sponsors; Chef Sheralyn Kirby; and staff members Scott Chieffo, and Kendra Stillman for all the extra effort!

Thank you to Allen Francis for capturing the events with your lens!

What a great way to wind up the summer!

Galactic Oceanic

Former curator Peter Flagg of the Crocker Art Museum describes Paul Stein's ceramic works as a fascinating mixture of Eastern sensibilities and California flair.

The ceramic vessels of Paul Stein closely parallel the effects of ceramics from the Chinese Song and Ming dynasties with their emphasis on perfection of color and form and in the translucency of their thin bodies, Flagg says. Most of the forms of Stein's porcelain vessels recall no specific shapes in the canon of Chinese ceramics, but rather appear to be loosely based on them. Similarly, his glazes — composed of brilliant rich or understated tones — have no exact equivalent in Chinese porcelain.

"Technically, Paul Stein's work is absolutely stunning and mystifying to most porcelain artists and collectors. He is very well received by his peers and has a great reputation in the world of ceramics. For me, seeing Paul's work in person makes me 'feel' something has touched my inner soul and has a sense of timelessness like none other that I have felt, says David "Sus" Susalla, Gualala Arts Executive Director. " I have personally been looking forward to this exhibit for some time now and I hope you enjoy getting an up-close, intimate look into this very special treasure of our coast."

Paul Stein studied with Richard Shaw at the San Francisco Art and he worked with Marguerite Wildenhain at Pond Farm. He now lives and works on the Mendocino Coast in a contemporary classic style in porcelain.

Old Painted Doors & Gates

Asha Carolyn Young presents her colorful painted doors as standing sculptural pieces. The rustic wooden doors, complete with nicks and scars acquired over many years, are each unique, found objects. Some of them are over 100 years old, she says.

"Doors and gates are, to me, beautiful, mystical symbols of transition and transformation," Young says. "Standing before them, they can evoke warmth and familiarity, anticipation and curiosity, excitement and trepidation—many emotions and imaginings. Old found doors carry a mystery regarding the history they hold with people who used them. They're quite lovable."

Young started painting on old found doors in 1995 when she first moved to San Francisco and lacked the money for paper or canvases. "I found this marvelous old gate outside the studio I was sharing on Natoma Street. I knew the deep grooves in the weathered wood would take oil paint nicely. Soon I was painting on large, stately doors along with rustic gates."

"For my seventh birthday, my father gave me a set of oil paints and said, 'Just don't eat anything,' and I began squeezing tubes of luscious paint and enjoying my big brushes," she says. "I still paint, now with a variety of mediums, approaches and surfaces. Each approach offers unique experiences and outcomes. Painting on old wooden doors is sheer fun."

As a teenager, she took Chinese brush painting classes, which led to a lifetime of enjoyment of painting on a variety of surfaces with ink, acrylic, chalk pastel and oil.

Young studied art at Laney College, Cultural Anthropology at U.C. Berkeley, and took lessons with a Japanese brush painting master for about seven years. She currently focuses mostly on plein air landscape, seascape painting, mixed media abstracts -- and doors.

A "found" necklace by Barbara Harris.

"Red Barn" by Nancy Burres

Nancy Burres oil paintings

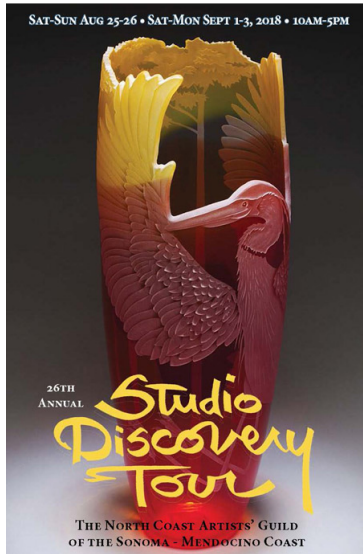

While classes certainly help artists to "learn the basics," Nancy Burres says that at some point an artist simply needs to keep painting, keep experimenting, until "you get it just right." Burres has been getting it just right for a long time, showing her work in galleries in Napa, Sonoma, and Mendocino counties. Her work is displayed in the Dolphin Gallery and in the Mendocino Country Store. "I love painting with oil," Burres says, adding that she also creates abstract images using acrylic: she chooses the medium that best suits her subject matter.

Burres notes that she especially "loves landscapes: when I look at a beautiful scene it gives me a sense of harmony and serenity," which she then captures in her paintings. Her many paintings of red-woods, sunsets, high mountain wildflowers, water scenes, and old falling-down cabins show her attachment to the natural world. Her ultimate goal, she says, "is to create artworks of beauty and peace that nourish the viewer on a spiritual level."

Barbara Harris jewelry

Barbara Harris describes her jewelry as "sculptural assemblages created from copper, brass, rubber, and plastic repurposed from salvage yards or found on the ground and the beach," along with whatever strikes her imagination, such as plumbing washers, poker chips, glass fishing floats, and seed pods. As this description suggests, Harris's work is inspired by what she finds around her: each piece she designs is one-of-a-kind and none are designed in advance. Rather, the materials themselves are the "initial inspiration" that leads to even more inspiration as she works her way through construction.

In addition to making remarkably memorable jewelry, Harris is an illustrator, calligrapher, graphic artist, and arts administrator who currently serves as Communications Director for the Voigt Family Sculpture Foundation in Geyserville. She also trains volunteer docents to lead tours at the famous Oliver Ranch. In addition to her work as an administrator for a number of arts organizations, Harris taught graphic design and visual communications courses at Santa Rosa Junior College for over 25 years.

Open Studio Self-guided Tour

Consider yourself invited to the second weekend of the 26th Annual Studio Discovery Tour! Come see our art for yourself and experience our hospitality in our studios. And maybe return to your home with a piece of our artwork as a reminder of our unique art community.

Catalogs for this free self-guided tour are available at the Gualala Arts Center, the Dolphin Gallery, the Mendocino Art Center, Elk Artists Collective,

Coast Highway Artists' Collective and various local galleries and businesses along the way or online at studiodiscoverytour.com.

Look for the bright yellow signs to help guide you along the way. Note that the catalog is a must when visiting artists on The Sea Ranch, since directional signs are not allowed along that section of Highway 1.

Groovin' in the Grove!

It's the perfect way to spend a September Indian Summer evening!

JJ Mule Kat features R&B Fusion in the Gualala Arts Redwood Grove with Tim Mueller on guitar and vocals; Paul Mueller on keyboard and sax; James Hayes on electric bass; Jesse Hanna on drums; and Katrina Coffman playing sax, flutes and performing vocals.

Make a night of it and check out the Paul Stein and Asha Carolyn Young exhibit opening, create your own art in the "Sip & Pour" painting class with Whitney Badgett Hasan upstairs, and then head out to the Redwood Grove for a pizza from the FOPO wood-fired oven and a little dancing under the stars.

"Every once in a while, the universe aligns just right and we have an exciting mix that makes for a great summer evening," said Gualala Arts Executive Director David "Sus" Susalla. "This is one of those nights!"

Still Life Oil Painting Demonstration

"As a painting instructor, my mission is to provide students with the foundation necessary to be creative. My goal is to assist students in capturing the particular mood of the moment and to express themselves in a bold and colorful way, while capturing the beauty and spontaneity of nature," says artist and instructor, Elio Camacho says.

Camacho will reveal his workshop techniques in this free oil painting demonstration on the Gualala Arts Memorial Mezzanine.

This full day demo is for artists of all painting levels looking for inspiration and instruction, Camacho says, and he will show his teaching style and offer insight as he paints. This free demonstration (which is the equivalent of free workshop!) is a preview of what he artist would like to offer in ongoing workshops next year in a series of on-going painting classes at Gualala Arts Center.

Come learn something new!

"My workshops are very hands-on, with an emphasis on easel side critiques. I believe that giving instruction is important, but showing students how this instruction applies to their individual work is crucial. Based on the student's level and goals, I develop a program for improving each individual's ability as a painter," he says.

Method of Instruction:

- Demos
- Hands On
- Instruction at the Students Easel
- Group Critiques

Fall into Fall...

3rd Annual Cajun Zydeco Fest

Lloyd Meadows and the Tri Tip Trio welcome autumn to Gualala Arts with a Cajun flair, including Zydeco tunes and a buffet style meal in the Redwood Grove.

Pizzas will be sold during the concert for $10 each (separate from dinner), fresh from the FOPO oven.

Lloyd Meadows has played the Arts Center several times with his band under various pseudonyms, but the music and fun are always the same -- executing New Orleans-style Cajun boot-stompin' tunes with sizzling roots and rhythms that are timeless and relentless!

Purchasing dinner tickets ensures best seating for concert!
General seating begins at 7:15 pm.

Parker Quartet, 2018-19 Chamber Concert

The Parker Quartet opens the new season of the Gualala Arts Chamber Concert series. Season tickets will be available at the Arts Center only starting (DATE?)

The hallmarks of the Parker Quartet are inspiring performances, luminous sound, and exceptional musicianship. This Grammy Award-winning quartet is renowned for its dynamic interpretations and polished, expansive colors, the group has rapidly distinguished itself as one of the preeminent ensembles of its generation.

Features Daniel Chong, violin; Ken Hamao, violin; Jessica Bodner, viola; Kee-Hyun Kim, cello.

70th Birthday Celebration

If you are celebrating your 70th Birthday anytime in 2018 this is the gathering for you!

This informal evening offers a Salmon dinner menu as originally created by Rosemarie Hocker for the first community birthday celebration on Sea Ranch back in 1998.

Birthday celebrants receive their dinner for free and for family or friends wishing to join in on the festivities, the dinner is $35.

Celebrants are invited to bring mementos and memories to share.

If you would like to volunteer at this heartwarming event, please call 707-884-1138. All community members welcome!

Gualala Arts Volunteer Spotlight

by
Joel Crockett

Introducing P.D. Serratoni

We are bringing back this popular feature of Sketches, highlighting our many volunteers! If you know someone who deserves the spotlight, please send your submissions to pr@gualalaarts.org.

If you've ever attended an event, any event, at Gualala Arts, chances are you've seen and probably met P.D. Serratoni. Maybe he greeted you at the entrance... or handed you your program. Perhaps he even showed you to your seat. The fact is, in the words of David 'Sus' Susalla, Executive Director of Gualala Arts, "P.D. volunteers for everything. I call him a 'Renaissance Man'. It's not unusual for a person to help out at a program or event for which she or he has a passion — the car show, chamber music, the Whale & Jazz Festival, theater — but P.D. loves it all."

KTDE's Fred Adler affirms, "He attends every event. He's more cultured than any of us." Each Sunday you'll hear Fred acknowledge P.D. on the air: "What would we do without you!"

P.D. moved from Michigan to The Sea Ranch with his late brother, Frank, and his sister-in-law, Karen, about six years ago. He learned about Gualala Arts and started "hanging out." It wasn't long before he began rolling up his sleeves and pitching in. He's been doing so ever since.

When asked what he likes about being a volunteer, P.D. responds with enthusiasm, "Everything!" He talks about such everyday tasks as setting up tables and chairs, cleaning up after an event, even taking out the trash. He particularly enjoys being part of the volunteer Tuesday work team (and making sure they all get sweets each week). But mostly he talks about helping people. His upbeat attitude is infectious. "I feel like I belong here," he exudes. "I love being here and I love the people." It shows.

Gualala Arts isn't the only place you'll find volunteer, P.D. Serratoni. He's on The Sea Ranch Trails Committee, working to make sure the bluff trail stays clean and weed free. He helps with the Humane Society, keeping the cats, and sometimes the dogs, company. And he's an usher at his church, where he also was on the hard-working team that recently poured a new concrete driveway.

When not volunteering, P.D. likes to stay current. He watches TV news and regularly reads the newspaper. On occasion you'll find him relaxing in the food court at the Sundstrom Mall. And those who attended the Glenn Miller concert at Gualala Arts know that P.D.'s a pretty darned good dancer, too.

In expressing his appreciation for all that P.D. contributes, Sus summed it up with these words: "P.D. is like a brother to me. And he's absolutely earned his title as Gualala Arts House Manager."

Community Forum

North Coast Artists' Guild presents:

A forum to discuss community project in conjunction with the February exhibit
"Crossing Boundaries: The Art of the Book"

Tuesday, September 18, 1 to 4 pm

Upstairs Classroom, GAC. $15 participation fee.

Register with Elizabeth Solomon at lizartseattle@gmail.com.

The forum will introduce "My Home," the Community Project, which will be featured in the Gualala Arts Elaine Jacob Foyer during the Book

Arts show. Discussion will be around what HOME means, whether it be a fixed location, a feeling, or an emotion. Participants are invited to bring a small object, photograph, or memento that represents home to him or her.

Please share this information, as the more people who participate, the more this installation will represent HOME on the coast in all of its diversity.

In addition to the community project's introduction, we will discuss plans for forums and workshops leading up to the Book Arts show. If you are unable to attend the forum, you are still invited to participate in the installation.
